

MARLO FOX

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Marlo Fox co-founded Think Tank, Inc. in 2006, with the purpose of equipping and facilitating collaboration among people and organizations seeking ways to promote greater connectedness and a more thriving community. For fifteen years she has served in various leadership capacities in the nonprofit sector. This has included working with diverse teams to develop and implement strategies and approaches aimed at fostering economic opportunity and personal and community leadership potential present among under-resourced neighborhoods and groups.

Marlo Fox has a BA in Social Work from Anderson University and will complete her Masters of Nonprofit Management Certification in Capacity Building through Regis University in 2015. Previous to her role at Think Tank, Marlo worked for nine years as a Workforce Development Program Director, helping to expand programming and increase job retention and advancement among unemployed and underemployed citizens of Clark County.

Marlo is certified in various curriculum including Bridges Out of Poverty and has helped author presentations and curriculum for use within nonprofit, business and faith based organizations seeking to become relevant and holistic in their approach to poverty alleviation. Marlo currently serves on the Springfield Promise Neighborhood Board of Directors and enjoys connecting with and serving the community through her church. She lives in Springfield, Ohio with her husband and two daughters.
